Annex 1

Terminology

Initial report: a report prepared by a State party to the Convention after the ratification of the Convention.

Periodic report: a report prepared by a State party to the Convention after the Committee has considered the initial report.

Combined periodic reports: two or more reports that the Committee has requested a State party to submit together.

Overdue report: a report that a State party should have submitted by a certain time, but that the State party has still not submitted.

Report due on a specific date: a report that a State party still has time to prepare and submit.

Report submitted: a report that a State party has sent to the Secretariat of the Committee.

List of issues: a set of questions prepared by the Committee and addressed to a State party, which aims to further clarify the information contained in a State report.

Replies to the list of issues: answers in writing provided by a State party to questions prepared by the Committee

Simplified reporting procedure: when a State party has agreed that the Committee prepare a list of questions before the State submits a periodic report.

List of issues prior to reporting: a list of questions prepared by the Committee before a State party submits a periodic report.

Replies to the list of issues prior to reporting: answers in writing submitted by a State party to respond to questions prepared by the Committee. These answers are considered the State report.

Dialogue between the Committee and the State party: in-presence meeting between the members of the Committee and a delegation of the State party in which they discuss the implementation of the Convention by the State party at the national level.

Yet to be determined: the date when the Committee will take action on a report has not been decided and it will be decided later on.

Dialogue expected to take place: The Committee has planned to have a dialogue with a State party, but the exact date of the dialogue is only tentative and may change.

List of issues or List of issues prior to reporting expected on a certain date: The Committee has planned to adopt a list of questions but the exact date is only tentative and may change.

Annex 2

Steps in the reporting cycle

Initial reports:

- Preparation of the initial report by the State party
- Submission of the initial report by the State party
- Adoption of a list of issues by the Committee
- Replies to the list of issues by the State party
- Dialogue between the Committee and the State party
- Adoption by the Committee of Concluding Observations, a document in which the Committee includes recommendations to the State party

Periodic reports

- Preparation of the periodic report by the State party
