Tour & Taxis – Brussels

Last year's SDG Forum left no doubt that we need to take the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) as the starting point for rebuilding resilient economies and societies. The COVID-19 crisis has further increased the importance of long-term SDG-based solutions in addressing unemployment, poverty and social inequality.

Join the fourth SDG Forum on October 5 to discuss how we can accelerate the development of long-term solutions that will leave no one behind. Meet with other SDG professionals from government, business, academia and civil society. Share your expertise and exchange practices and lessons learned.

WHAT TO EXPECT?

- Plenary sessions with inspiring keynote speakers and panel debates on sustainable societal and environmental transition
- Commentary by Jeffrey Sachs (TBC) on the global sustainability trends.
- 30 workshops on various themes such as SDGs and Education, SDGs and Finance, SDGs and local government, SDG and policy guidelines, etc.
- Networking moments where SDG professionals can share their ideas.

Mark 5 october in your agenda and keep an eye on our website to stay updated about the programme and practical information. The programme can change due to further developments regarding COVID-19.
